Tamamo-no-Mae is called "Sangoku Denrai Konmou Kyuubi no Kitsune" for an alias. The "Three Nations" (Sangoku) points to China, India and Japan. Since it traveled around and greatly raged around those three countries, it was given that name. It was born in Ancient China. They say the energy of Yin crystallized and came to take the form of a fox. It comprehended the Human-Transformation Jutsu, took the form of Daji, a woman unequalled in beauty, and became the empress of King Zhou of the Shang Empire. This was in the 11th Century B.C. Daji tempted Zhou and tormented people with cruel misgovernment, but before long, when the Shang Empire was overthrown by King Wu of the Zhou, she ran to India and took the form of Kayouten, queen of Maghada's Honsoku Taishi. Afterwards she once again returned to China and hid for a little while, but they said that envoy Kibino Makibi came from Japan and it boarded his boat, coming to Japan.

Several centuries later, the youko, who took the guise of a beautiful woman called Tamamo-no-Mae, schemed to murder emperor Toba, but it's true identity was seen through by an onmyouji and ran to Nasuo of Tochigi Prefecture. It was there that it fought in a fierce battle that went through two days and nights with 15,000 allied forces of Miura-no-Suke Yoshiaki and Kazusa-no-Suke Hirotsune, was finally defeated and became "Sesshouseki", a giant stone mass. Even afterwards it spit out poisonous gas for a short while and tormented the people in its circumference, but before long due to the noted priest Genou splitting the rock by his Buddhist power, the youko spirit finally was terminated.

Furthermore, since Sesshouseki has become a sightseeing place now, it's fine for people who are interested to go there. There are numberless stone Jizous and it's quite an eerie place.

RETURN OF THE GREAT YOUKAI ENCYCLOPEDIA

#29 Binbougami

In a certain place, there was an extremely poor man. One day, he saw it was because a small being with the form of a person that fell down from his shoulders, this was Binbougami. Due to Binbougami falling from his body, he was delighting that he was finally released from poverty but what Binbougami said was "Binbougami have been packed tightly in your body from the top of your head to the tips of your toes. You were too full of them, there came to not be a place in there and I carelessly just fell out." The story says that the man was poor for a long time from then on.

Like that, Binbougami are terribly stubborn and won't let go until you die once you're possessed by it. In truth they're a bad spirit. However, there is also this story.

In a certain place, there was a poor married couple. Even though they were poor, the couple didn't complain with discontent and worked with eagerness. And then one day, when looking due to hearing weeping on their ceiling, there was a Binbougami who said, "I've come to not be in this home due to both of you working eagerly your entire lives. Before long, a god of good fortune has come and driven me out."

The couple, who thought this was sorrowful, protected the Binbougami and drove away the god of good fortune that had come. And then the seedy Binbougami was spoken well about even as it lived in a home on that street up to then. After this, the couple continued to work with eagerness in their lives. Before long, the detenorated home became affluent. One day when suddenly looking up, a sole god was smiling there. It was the Binbougami, but it was wearing pretty clothing now and had become a god of good fortune who possessed a figurative magic wand. The diligence of the couple had transformed the Binbougami to a God of Good Fortune.

The element of predestiny which says you are rich or poor, good fortune or bad by birth is strong, but there is vitality in brushing this away—if it is, then naturally you can open up to fortune. There are people who say that good fortune comes at the gate of smiles. Wish me luck for that as well.

Type setters notes

This page is for the page that cant be translated because the magaka did not make speech bubbles. If I typesetted on the page it would wreck the artwork

Note 1: A week ago... I was going to save a mother and child who were committing double-suicide on top of a bridge. That mother and child were possessed by Binbougami and were suffering. I attempted to exorcise it but...

Note 2:
Nube: I angered Binbougami and it possessed me. Binbougami is called "Kyukki" in Chinese, when you're possessed by it, you become poor to the extent of being chewed to the bone and come to be strangled to death. You're tormented to the point of getting into debt of tens of millions, sell your home and your plot of land and committing suicide. This is completely different from ordinary poverty.

Note 3: This is the translators note from mangahelpers

So he could protect his country he massively killed tens of thousands of soldiers of his enemy nation of Turkey changed into a youkai through his actions in his former life and has been said to have become a monster who sip the living blood of human and has lived for hundreds of years

It absolutely seems so. It's the vampire legend revived in the present.
So then...you're saying that the criminal of this incident was Dracula?

RETURN OF THE GREAT YOUKAI ENCYCLOPEDIA

If I say vampire, then the first thing that I'm reminded of is Count Dracula. That is a literary creation by Bram Stoker, an Irish author, but what became his model is said to be Vlad Tepes, the King of the Duchy of Wallachia in Romania. That nation couldn't bear the wars by invaders of different races, due to this, the people of the Basarab family, who were the royalty, were said to change into youkai by the blood of their killed enemies. The family were said to have a personality of boundless cruelty starting with Vlad Tepes, who took the alias of "The Impaler" and took amusement by skewering not just enemies but even the people of Wallachia. Due to this, people included their resentment and hatred for the and his family and called him "Vlad Dracul" (Dracul had a meaning of "evil spirits or "devils", which was synonymous with dragons)

Afterwards, the dynasty was destroyed by the Turks (1658) and a man who was thought to be his descendant took the name of Vlad Dracul Basarab and bought up a huge plot of land in Transylvania. He was Count Dracula and afterwards crossed over to England and caused bizarre incidents one after another...

Well then, Dracula is a male vampire, but one who is famous as a female vampire is Carmilla. She was a character introduced in a novel by Le Fanu, but she was an unusual creation of a lesbian (lover of the fellow female sex) vampire. People who are interested in it please read about it yourself Vampre- But then, one day...I suddenly had a thought. If I could send out energy...then couldn't I conversely suck in energy?

vampire bottom half of the page- A satisfactory feeling that surpassed all pleasant feelings was presented to me with this. Power swelled up in my body and I had a feeling of fullness that I hadn't personally experienced until now. And so, I attacked humans one after another, coming to suck their energy. Before long, I had changed physically with this overflowing energy in my body; I couldn't age, I had been born again into a superman!

Nube- The whimsy of the gods extremely rarely presents to humans the spiritual powers to freely manipulate energy But there isn't a limit for anyone to use it for a correct purpose When spiritual power is used by an evil heart, the human becomes a youkai...that vampire may have been the form of I myself

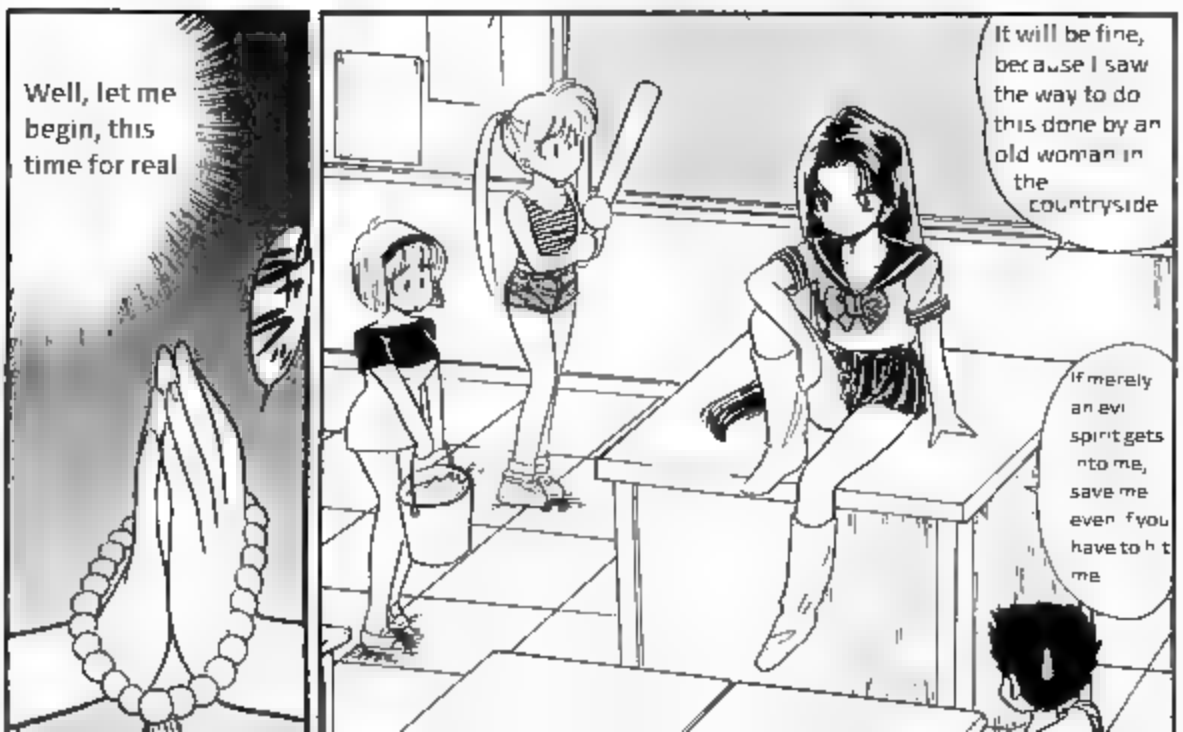
You really want to do this that's like doing necromancy
Yes, it's because I'm a bottom-of the-barrel Itako. I can't do necromancy after all
What, I asked you having anticipated the true power of a spiritually powered person like you
If that's the case, then what about if you return to your old home and train? I don't about know this

TS note: Hirosh says your voice can't fit into that small space

What are you doing
Ah that so? I won't ask anymore
Necromancy is a dangerous technique where a spirit enters into your body It can't extremely be done by a money-intended Kogal like you It's just impossible



Well, let me begin, this time for real
It will be fine, because I saw the way to do this done by an old woman in the countryside
If merely an evil spirit gets into me, save me even if you have to hit me

Come and approach Come and approach
The number of gods are the 98 007 gods of Shinto The number of dead is on 12 004 spiritual grounds surprise and present to me wide Meidou

Nube, actually... Izuna-san yesterday
Can you really call our mother?
Well, big sister Izuna
Today is mother's birthday and we're giving her presents
I was tired after the show yesterday, but today I'll be fine
Leave this to me

TS Note cant get t to fit but she says My heart s throbbing

she,,, may become a good Itako
I thought she only thought about making money but Izuna-san was embarrassed because of her personality
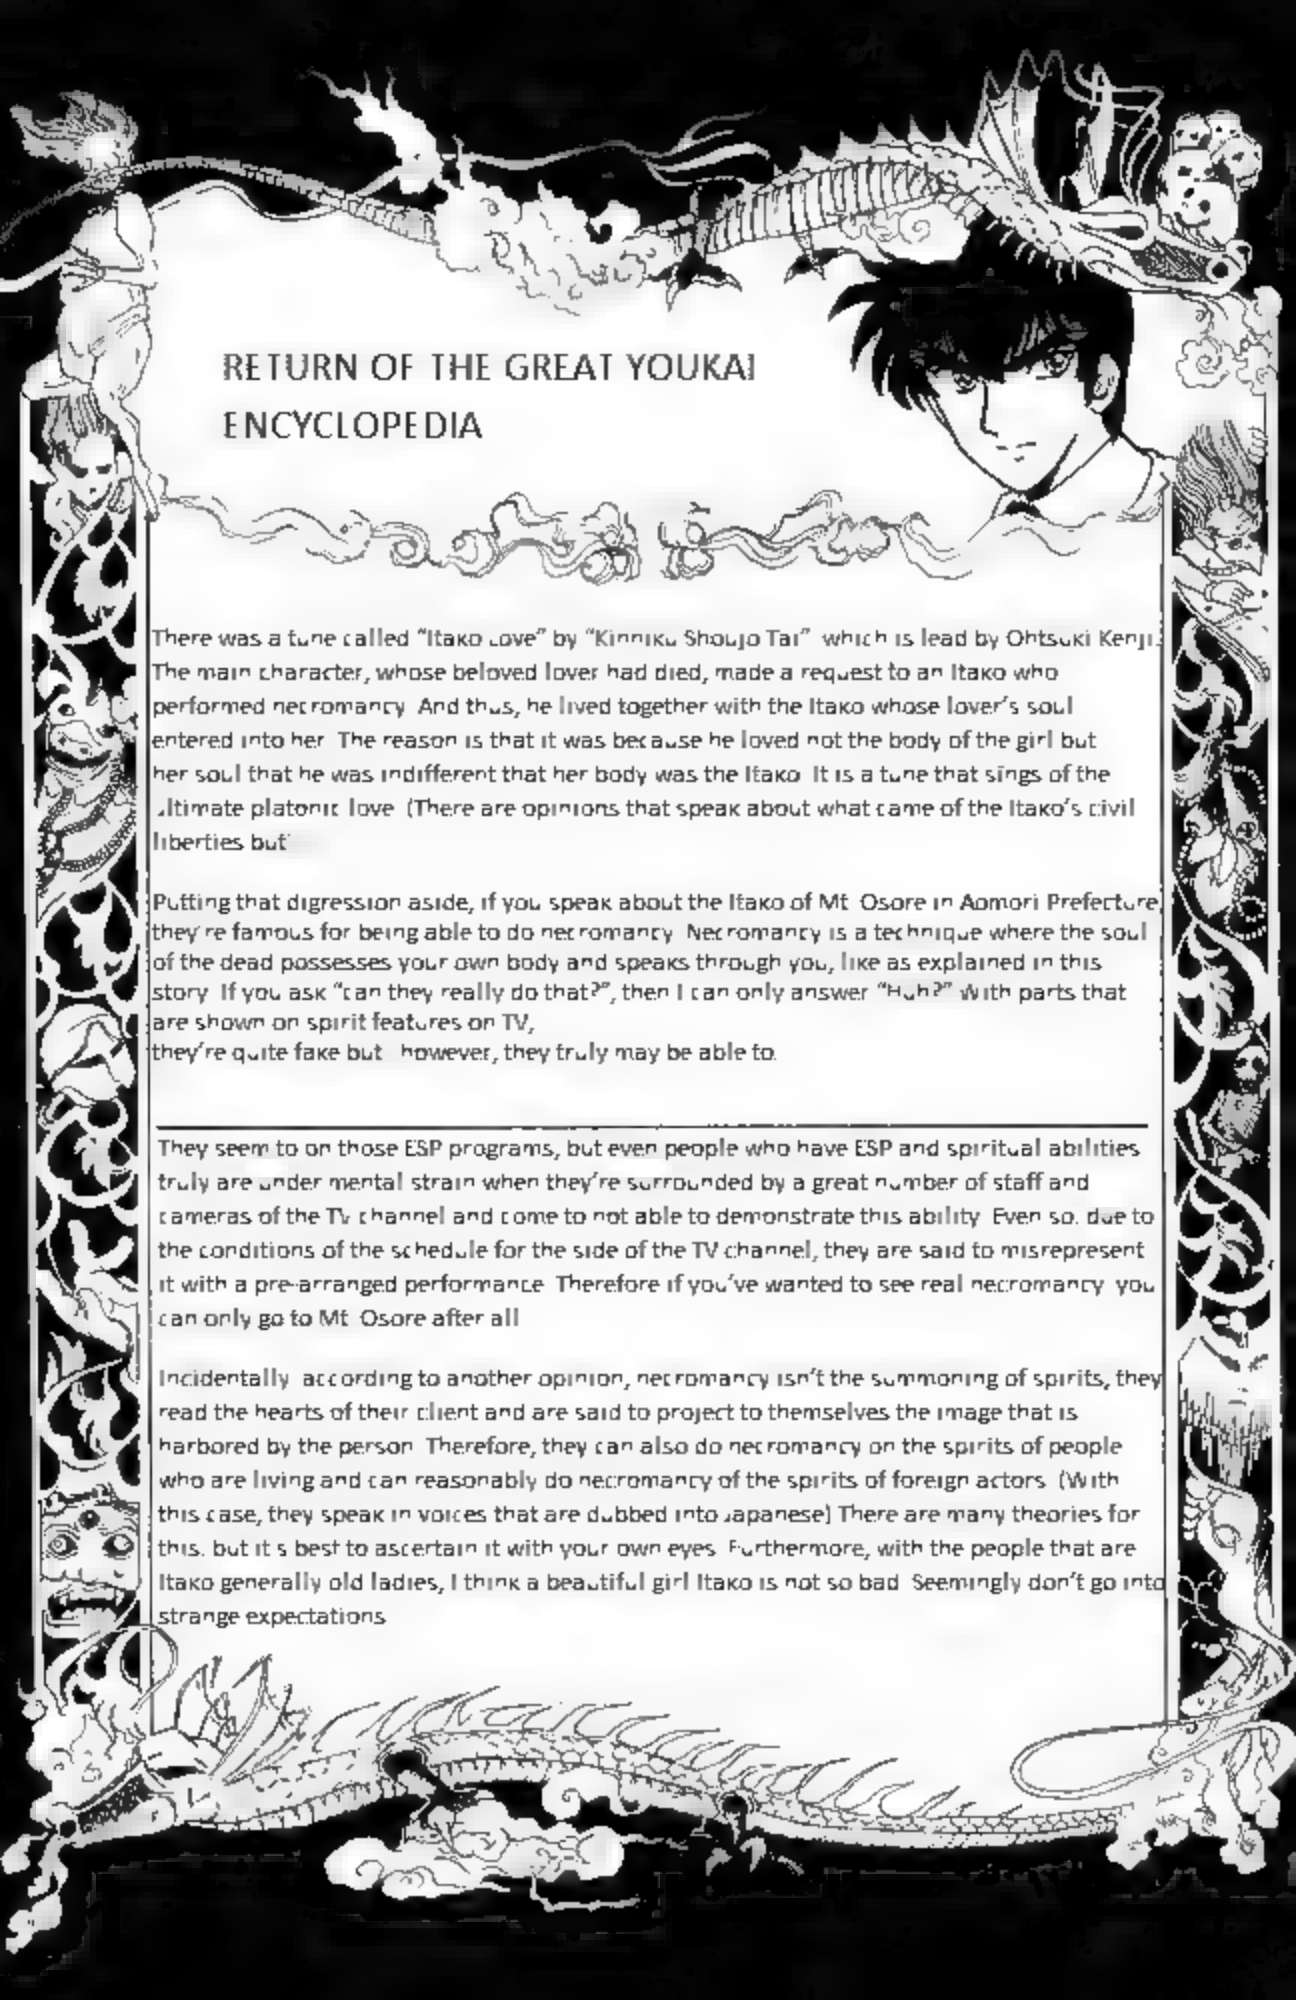
Really if you said so from the start, then I would have cooperated and yet
I'm glad
Are you satisfied?
Yep!
My fee is a hundred thousand yen
will you steadily pay me? If you can how about a loan? Hmm?
A hundred thousand



RETURN OF THE GREAT YOUKAI ENCYCLOPEDIA

There was a tune called "Itako Love" by "Kinniku Shoujo Tai" which is lead by Ohtsuki Kenji. The main character, whose beloved lover had died, made a request to an Itako who performed necromancy. And thus, he lived together with the Itako whose lover's soul entered into her. The reason is that it was because he loved not the body of the girl but her soul that he was indifferent that her body was the Itako. It is a tune that sings of the ultimate platonic love. (There are opinions that speak about what came of the Itako's civil liberties but)

Putting that digression aside, if you speak about the Itako of Mt. Osore in Aomori Prefecture, they're famous for being able to do necromancy. Necromancy is a technique where the soul of the dead possesses your own body and speaks through you, like as explained in this story. If you ask "can they really do that?", then I can only answer "Huh?" With parts that are shown on spirit features on TV, they're quite fake but, however, they truly may be able to.

They seem to on those ESP programs, but even people who have ESP and spiritual abilities truly are under mental strain when they're surrounded by a great number of staff and cameras of the TV channel and come to not able to demonstrate this ability. Even so, due to the conditions of the schedule for the side of the TV channel, they are said to misrepresent it with a pre-arranged performance. Therefore if you've wanted to see real necromancy, you can only go to Mt. Osore after all.

Incidentally, according to another opinion, necromancy isn't the summoning of spirits, they read the hearts of their client and are said to project to themselves the image that is harbored by the person. Therefore, they can also do necromancy on the spirits of people who are living and can reasonably do necromancy of the spirits of foreign actors. (With this case, they speak in voices that are dubbed into Japanese) There are many theories for this, but it's best to ascertain it with your own eyes. Furthermore, with the people that are Itako generally old ladies, I think a beautiful girl Itako is not so bad. Seemingly don't go into strange expectations.

furthermore in spite of the corpses being completely rigor and pulled off of him it was said to be done at length by taking several people
In the autopsy results the college students had spent 2 hours down here after their deaths So why could be corpses who died 2 hours earlier be clumping to him

Why have we come to do this
With two more tales, an interesting thing will occur
Why? We have two left and yet ?

When the [illegible] opens up, it comes to free up as an entrance and exit to the realm of the dead and youkai in the [illegible] successively come above the ground [illegible] period of a month just like in "Inou Monoseikerokou"
Aoandon is a small demon that is said to be the guide to the realm of the dead. He does the Hundred Tales to humans and the spiritual power that is gathered there is utilized and creates a giant Kanon (demon gate,

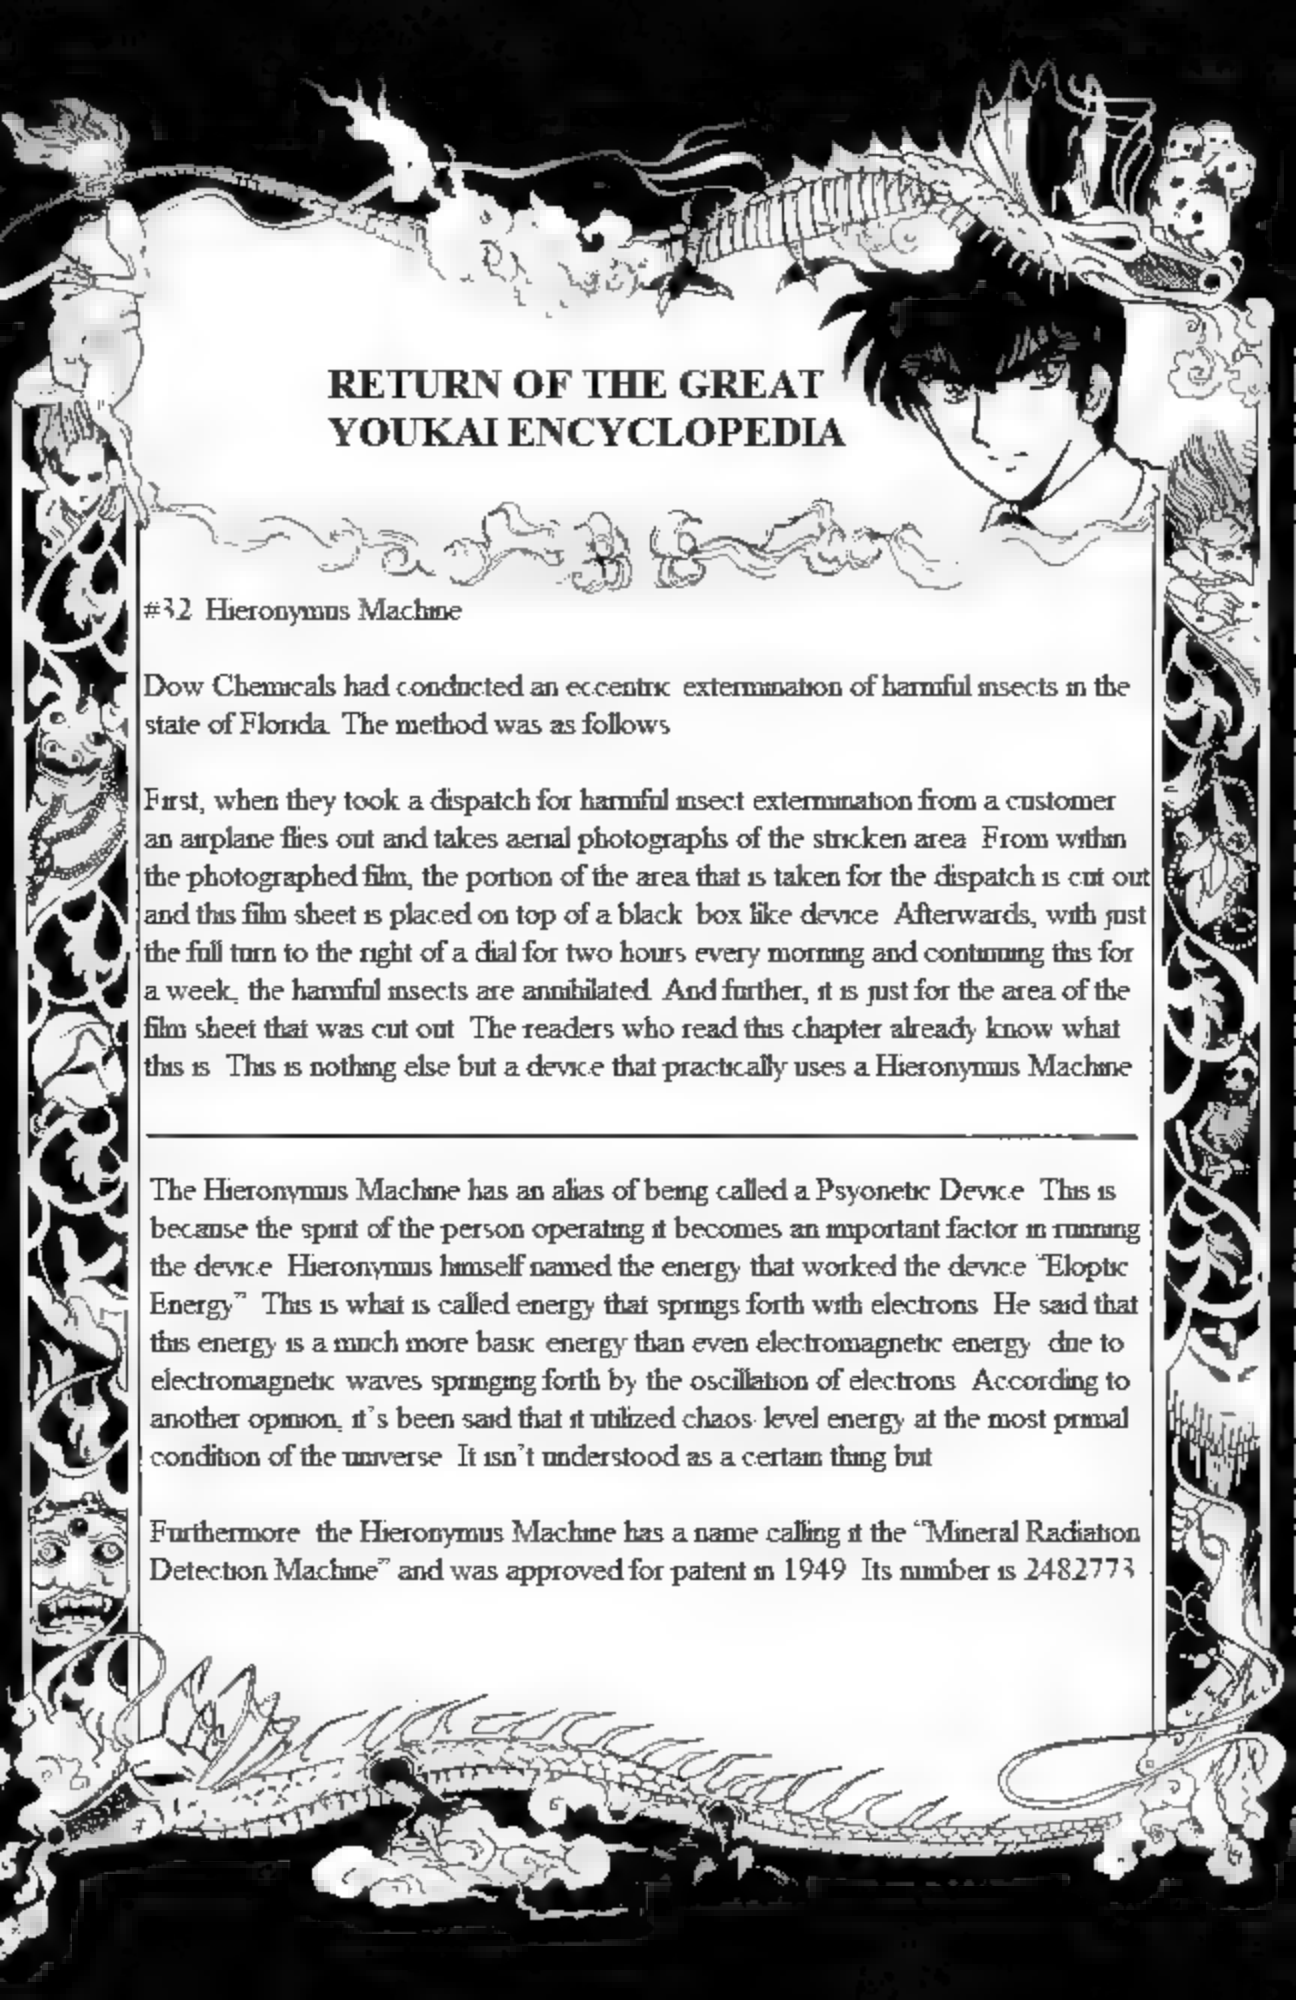
Up to the present. the Hieronymus Machine hasn't had a report that says it releases a large power to the extent of presenting harm to humans
However, there has been confirmation that there is power to kill if it's around insects, it has changed for a practical use for exterminating harmful insects and has presented major results in America
This is too dangerous for all of you
It surely is the Kokkuri- san of science



RETURN OF THE GREAT YOUKAI ENCYCLOPEDIA

#32 Hieronymus Machine

Dow Chemicals had conducted an eccentric extermination of harmful insects in the state of Florida. The method was as follows

First, when they took a dispatch for harmful insect extermination from a customer an airplane flies out and takes aerial photographs of the stricken area. From within the photographed film, the portion of the area that is taken for the dispatch is cut out and this film sheet is placed on top of a black box like device. Afterwards, with just the full turn to the right of a dial for two hours every morning and continuing this for a week, the harmful insects are annihilated. And further, it is just for the area of the film sheet that was cut out. The readers who read this chapter already know what this is. This is nothing else but a device that practically uses a Hieronymus Machine

The Hieronymus Machine has an alias of being called a Psyonetic Device. This is because the spirit of the person operating it becomes an important factor in running the device. Hieronymus himself named the energy that worked the device "Eloptic Energy". This is what is called energy that springs forth with electrons. He said that this energy is a much more basic energy than even electromagnetic energy due to electromagnetic waves springing forth by the oscillation of electrons. According to another opinion, it's been said that it utilized chaos level energy at the most primal condition of the universe. It isn't understood as a certain thing but

Furthermore, the Hieronymus Machine has a name calling it the "Mineral Radiation Detection Machine" and was approved for patent in 1949. Its number is 2482773

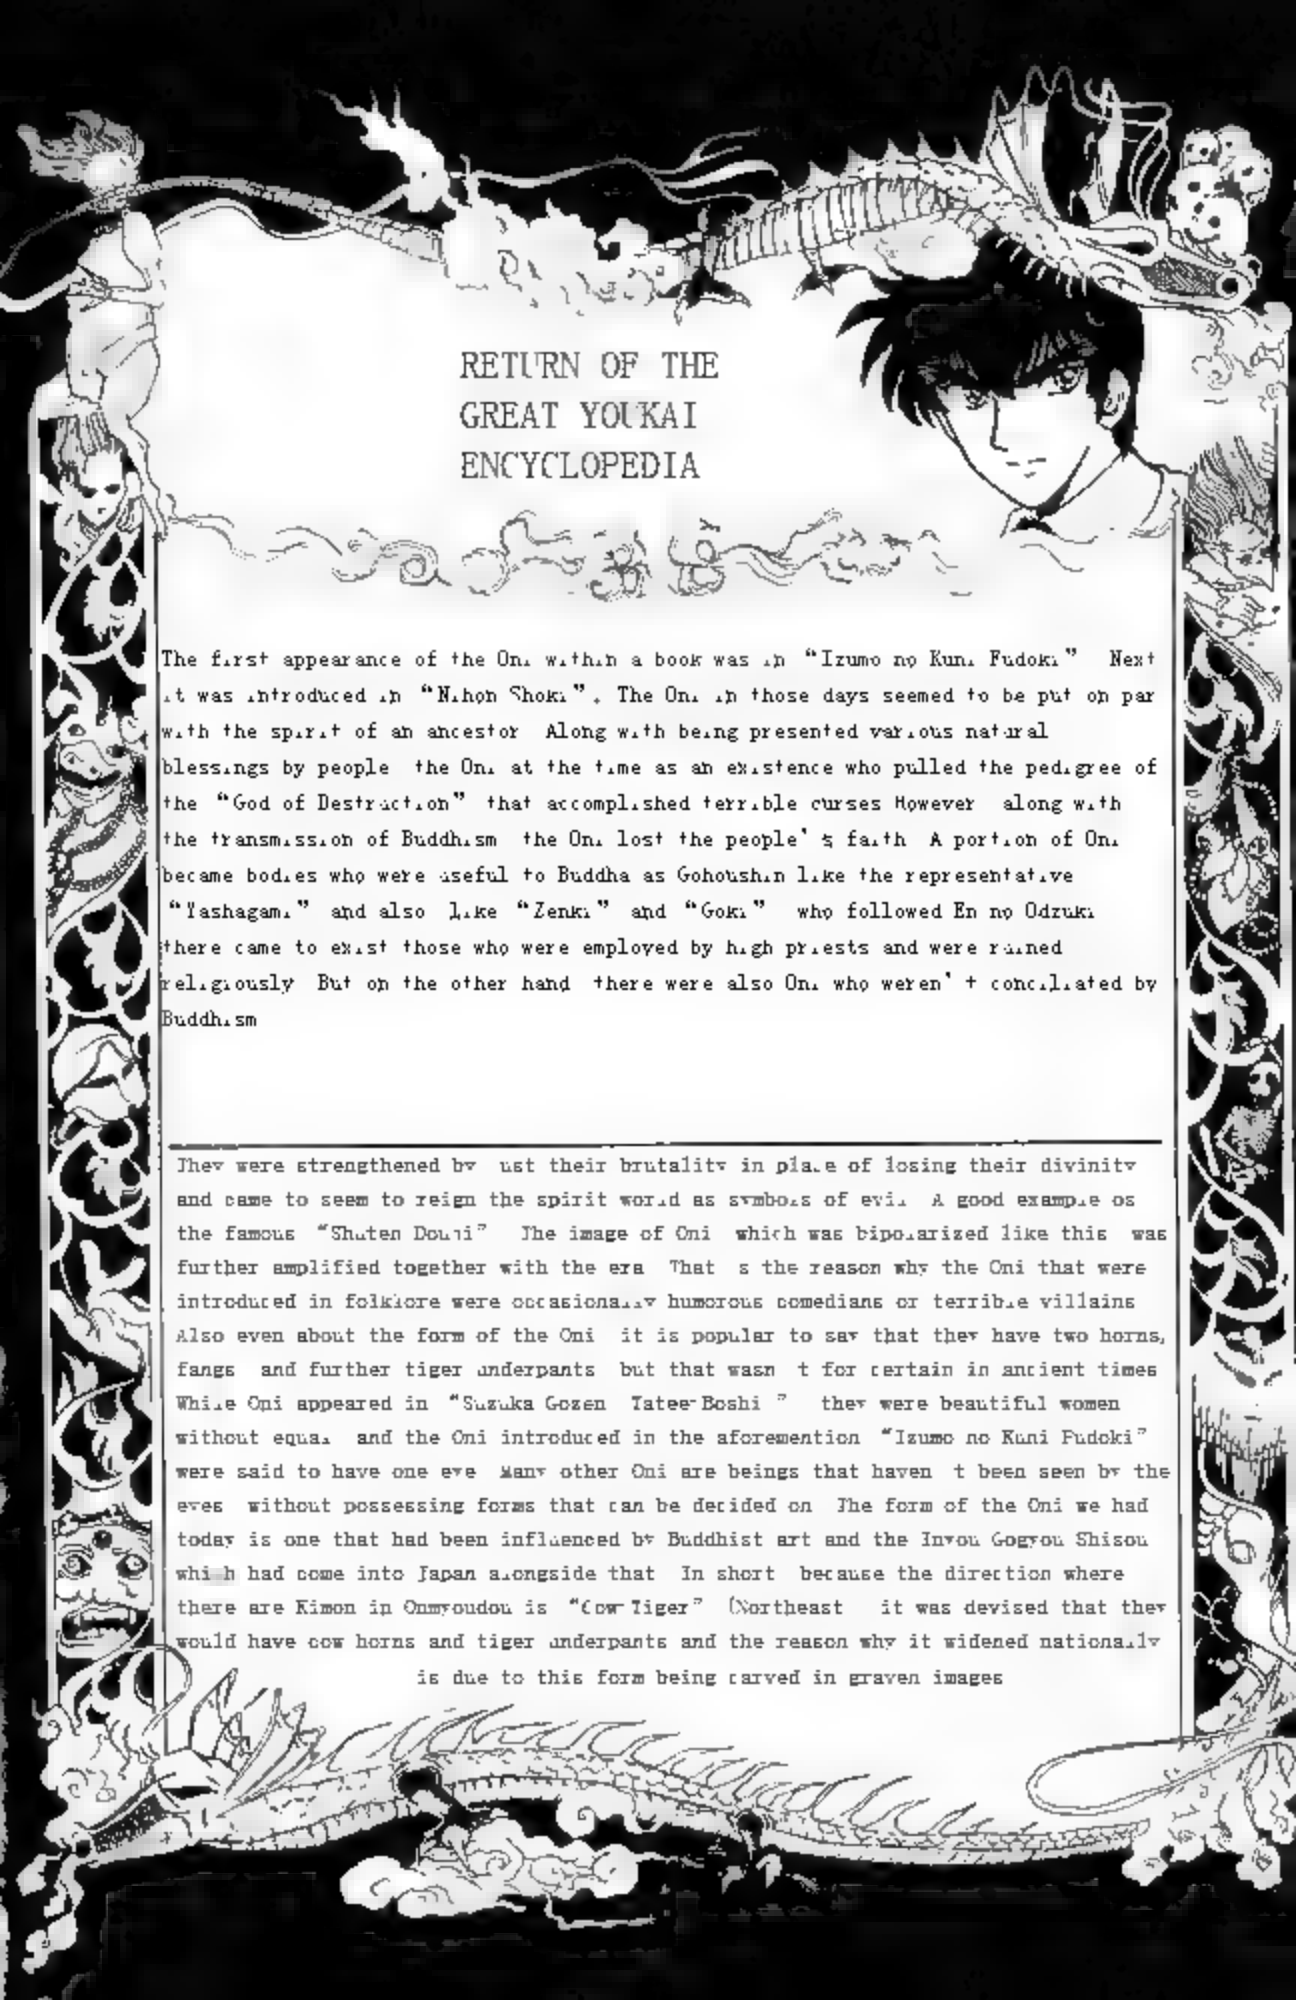
The Oni no Te is a double edged sword



The first appearance of the Oni within a book was in "Izumo no Kuni Fudoki". Next it was introduced in "Nihon Shoki". The Oni in those days seemed to be put on par with the spirit of an ancestor. Along with being presented various natural blessings by people, the Oni at the time as an existence who pulled the pedigree of the "God of Destruction" that accomplished terrible curses. However, along with the transmission of Buddhism, the Oni lost the people's faith. A portion of Oni became bodies who were useful to Buddha as Gohoushin like the representative "Yashagami" and also like "Zenki" and "Goki" who followed En no Odzuki, there came to exist those who were employed by high priests and were trained religiously. But on the other hand, there were also Oni who weren't conciliated by Buddhism.

They were strengthened by just their brutality in place of losing their divinity and came to seem to reign the spirit world as symbols of evil. A good example is the famous "Shuten Douji". The image of Oni which was bipolarized like this was further amplified together with the era. That's the reason why the Oni that were introduced in folklore were occasionally humorous comedians or terrible villains. Also, even about the form of the Oni, it is popular to say that they have two horns, fangs, and further tiger underpants, but that wasn't for certain in ancient times. While Oni appeared in "Suzuka Gozen Tatee-Boshi", they were beautiful women without equal, and the Oni introduced in the aforementioned "Izumo no Kuni Fudoki" were said to have one eye. Many other Oni are beings that haven't been seen by the eyes, without possessing forms that can be decided on. The form of the Oni we had today is one that had been influenced by Buddhist art and the Inyou Gogyou Shisou which had come into Japan alongside that. In short, because the direction where there are Kimon in Onmyoudou is "Cow-Tiger" (Northeast), it was devised that they would have cow horns and tiger underpants, and the reason why it widened nationally is due to this form being carved in graven images.

pg150. Some of the paragraphs are on top of the art. So the translation will be posted here

Nube (to himself) Minako sensei, I became a teacher similar to you who I respect. For saving children who have been possessed by spirits and have problems with them similar to you…

Nube You abandoned your own life so you could exorcise an evil spirit that had possessed me.

Nube: I inherited this will.

Type setters note Pg 157 Too little space and 2 paragrapghs are on top of the art

Minako Minako And then, my soul was absorbed into an Oni of hell My soul with strong spirit power was a suitable prey for the Oni

Minako; I was absorbed and became part of the Oni

Minako But whether fortunate or unfortunate, my will remained within the Oni's body Due to this, when this Oni appeared in this present world so it could raise disasters in the world

妖怪大百科

その34

???（雑学）

今回は妖怪とは関係ない話。本編中でりんどう丸は十四歳で出陣、とあった。十四歳なら中学二年か、と思った人は甘い。昔は年齢の数え方が今とは違ったのです。今では生まれたときはゼロ歳で、その後誕生日がくるたびに一歳ずつ増えていく（満年齢という）けれど、昔は生まれたその日からいきなり一歳になり、その後正月がくるたびに一歳ずつ増えていた（数え年という）のだ。だから十二月に生まれた人は、次の月にはもう二歳になっていたわけ。だから昔の十四歳は今の十二歳にあたるのだ。どうしてこんな数え方をしたのかというと、多分昔は子供がたくさん生まれたので、いちいち誕生日を覚えていられなかったからだろう。

さらに、年齢だけでなく月の数え方もちがっていた。今は地球が太陽の回りを一周する時間を一年として、それをだい たい十二等分して一か月としているが、昔は月の満ち欠けが一周りする間（二十九日間）を一か月としていた。三日月とか十五夜というのは、その名残りなのです。しかし、この数え方だと一年三百六十五日とのズレが大きすぎるので、うるう月といって、一か月まるまる同じ月をくり返す年があった。

さらにさらに、月の数え方がちがったのは英語も同じ。ちょっと勉強した人なら、英語の月の数え方が、九月以降少しおかしいのに気付くだろう。八月までは神の名や人名に由来しているからいいけれど、九月はSeptember（Septは七を表す。七番目の月ということ）十月はOctober（Octは八）十一月はNovember（Novは九）、十二月がDecember（Decは十）と、二か月ずつずれているのです。これは昔は三月（Marchマルスの月）が正月だったのを、ローマ時代に一月（Januaryヤヌスの月）を正月とするように変えたからなのです。暦って、けっこういいかげんなものでしょう？　結局人間が勝手につくったものだからね…。

そういえばもうすぐ一九九九年で、世紀末だ、などとさわぐ人がいるけれど、日本の古い暦では一九九九年は紀元二六五九年。世紀末でもなんでもない。あまり数字にだまされないようにね。では！
